

Megan Woltman, Vice President,
Government and Community Relations, Advocate Health Care

Meghan Clune Woltman is the Vice President of Government and Community Relations for Advocate Health Care, the largest provider of health services in Illinois.

She leads Advocate's efforts in Springfield, IL and Washington, D.C. and works with hospital-based teams to build local partnerships with elected officials and community stakeholders and to communicate the policy priorities of the system. Meghan has been with Advocate since 2006, when she joined the system as Director of Government Relations with a specific focus on state issues. Since that time, her responsibilities have expanded to include all levels of government as well as community health strategy.

Meghan is the Vice-Chairman of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce and has been a Director on the Board since 2011. She also sits on the Chicago Women in Government Relations Board of Directors as well.

She earned her Bachelor's Degree from St. Louis University in Communication and Marketing and also completed her Master's Degree at St. Louis University through a research fellowship focused on political rhetoric and journalism.

Meghan and her husband live in River Forrest and have three children, the youngest being 10 months old.
