Second Series of Workshops

Workshop #5: AJ Sheehan and Josh Lawson, MVP Law

Topic: McAllister: A Closer Look at the Supreme Court's 2020 Decision & Its Impact
MVP Law workers' compensation defense attorneys will discuss the McAllister case facts, reasoning, analysis, etc. for accidents "arising out of" employment. They will discuss how the court's decision changed the prior standard for compensable accidents and about the impact expected on future cases. Then, several post-McAllister cases will be examined, including the facts, issues arising out of employment, and why the courts/Commission held that way. Finally, they will address the true impact of the McAllister case and if it's made as big of an impact as initially expected.

Workshop #6: Sue Baxter-Pfleiderer RN, CCM, Triune Health Group

Topic: Dialing Down Costs: The Impact of Telephonic Nurse Triage in Workers' Comp

Telephonic Nurse Triage can help ensure employees get the right care, if needed, decrease costs, lower your e-mod rate, prevent fraud, and streamline your incident reporting process. It also ensures continuity across incidents and provides an ethical approach to incident reporting.

Workshop #7: Tom Stanley, M.D., Orthollinois

Topic: Determining the Source of Pain: Neck Vs. Shoulder

Does an aching shoulder really signal a shoulder injury? Does a sore neck really signal a neck injury? Dr. Tom Stanley, Orthopedic Spine Surgeon at Orthollinois, will lead an in-depth presentation diving into the intricacies of the relationship between the neck and shoulder, how to tell the difference between a shoulder injury versus a neck injury, and treatment options for each.

He will speak to the responsibility of leadership, including commitment to providing equitable access and opportunity to all.

1:00 – 1:30 p.m.

General Session: Mark Walls, Safety National

Workers Compensation Costs: What is Really Happening?

The last few years, workers compensation costs for most employers has been relatively stable while costs for liability and property coverage have escalated rapidly. However, workers compensation is still a major expense for employers and the long-term development of the claims tale is a cause for concern.

In this session, we will review data from WCRI, NCCI and other sources to show how Illinois compares to surrounding states. We will also discuss the significant cost drivers that most analysis is missing in their data and how this will ultimately impact workers compensation costs for Illinois employers.
